RATHENAU SLAIN BY ASSASSINS

Monarchist Revolt Is Feared by Many in Berlin

GERMANY'S BIG MAN

Ranked With Stinnes As Industrial Baron, Although Socialist

BERLIN, June 24.—Walter Rathenau, minister of foreign affairs was killed today by an assassin, who threw a hand grenade and then opened fire with a revolver and escaped in an automobile.

The attack occurred in the Bismarck Strasse, just after Rathenau had left his home near Potsdam, on his way to his office.

Rathenau ranked with Hugo Stinnes as one of the strongest men in Germany. He incurred the hatred of the monarchists by his activities in the government of the German conference, he negotiated the treaty with soviet Russia, which was bitterly opposed by the allies. An eye-witness told the United Press two masked assassins attacked Rathenau.

As their motor car came alongside the foreign minister, they simultaneously hurled hand grenades and fired their pistols, he declared. Eight bullets struck Rathenau in the head.

The assassination created a sensation at the meeting of the Reichstag committee this morning.

Socialists swarmed around former Chancellor Helfferich, who recently attacked Rathenau in a speech.

"You're the murderer," they cried.

Some of the socialists grabbed Helfferich by the collar as they accused him of responsibility for the assassination. He left at once.

A messenger arrived with a bouquet of roses for Helfferich. The flowers were tied with a black, white and red ribbon on which was inscribed:

"To the saviors of the fatherland."

A melee ensued in which the messenger was beaten.

Rathenau was one of the most powerful men in the German government. He and Stinnes were considered Germany's wealthiest men. Despite his great wealth he was a member of the socialist party and it is possible his assassination was due to the monarchists.

In all his dealings Rathenau stood for a sane and quick settlement of the reparations and indemnities problems with France. His death is considered a most serious blow to the sane reconstructionist movement.

Dr. Rathenau was the son of the founder of the electrical trust of Germany.

In an interview with a representative of the United Press last year, Dr. Rathenau insisted that he always had opposed to the war.

Being enormously rich and one of the highest class of business barons, he was called upon by Chancellor Wirth to participate in the formation of a republic.

Dr. Rathenau was particularly popular with Americans. He had traveled extensively in America and found much common ground for discussion with visiting American financiers and business men.

Many American observers considered Rathenau by far the strongest man in present-day German life and looked upon him as the greatest influence working toward a sane solution of Germany's problems.

STUDENT BODY TO BUY 'MOVIE' MACHINE

High School Pupils Have $1000 After Paying Indebtedness

The student body of the Glendale high school is about to realize its one big wish. There are sufficient funds in the treasury to purchase a motion picture machine for the school.

Miss Fern Teeters, secretary of the student body, said yesterday that after paying all bills against the student body, there is approximately $1000 remaining in the treasury.

The parent-teachers' association recently made the students a present of a check to be used in helping secure a motion picture machine. A portion of the $1000 surplus was added to the check to secure a machine. The remainder of the money will be used in the furnishing of a cabinet room for the students at the new high school.

All Obstacles May Be Overcome According to Listening Post

There is no obstacle so great that it cannot be overcome. If you do not believe this statement, read the Listening Post by James W. Foley, this evening. "Either by going under them, by going over them or by going through them, obstacles may be overcome. All it takes is the resolution to get by them," asserts Mr. Foley.

Politics and scientific achievements are the themes for several interesting editorials this evening, the article dealing with the latter subject, telling about the vain efforts of a physician with the aid of airplane, automobile and radio, to save the life of a youth.

Is the planet Venus inhabitable? Is the introductory question to the astronomical feature this evening by Elisabeth M. Lewis of the U. S. naval observatory.

Other features making up the editorial page this evening, are by Della Stewart, John Pilgrim and Dr. Frank Crane.

Unintentional errors in the use of English are quite frequent among all of us. The correct usage of words and phrases is one of the most interesting studies imaginable.

POLICE CHIEF IS BACK FROM BAY CITY

Believes He Got Value
for Trip to Cop
Convention

Chief of Police John D. Fraser returned last night from the 29th national convention of police officials which was held in San Francisco. He spent about a week in the northern city and believes that while there he secured a great deal of information that will assist him in his work of combating crime in Glendale during the next year.

Shortly after arriving at the convention, Chief Fraser was selected as a member of the committee on organization and by-laws, and for three days this committee worked diligently to get its report and recommendations in form for the convention.

Chief Fraser stated this morning that the general opinion of the convention was that the crime wave in the country is growing very rapidly and that the police officials are not able to cope with it.

It was stated that the radio, the flying machine and every modern agency is now being used to combat crime, but in the face of this fact it continues to grow. The convention was strongly opposed to the carrying of concealed weapons, and was emphatic on its insistence for more uniform naturalization.

It was the general opinion of the Woman's Police association of the United States should take over all women's cases and the cases of boys under twelve years.

It registered a strong opposition on the granting of probation to dope fiends and peddlers.

The traffic question was given considerable discussion, and it was stated that in the United States there is a traffic condition that is indeed hard to cope with.

A committee was appointed to recommend to next year's convention, which will be held in Buffalo, N. Y., a uniform system of traffic signs for the entire country, so that the traveler will not be confronted with a different system of signs in every city he enters.

A number of social affairs were given the delegates. On the opening night Mayor Ralph of San Francisco entertained the delegates with an elaborate dinner.

While another very wonderful affair was given by the Rotary club of that city on the second night.

On the third night the Down Town club was host to the delegates and showed them a real time.

GLENDALE K. P. LODGE IS LIVE WIRE STATION

So Says State "Pythian Star" of Los Angeles

Glendale received considerable advertising among the notes of the local Knights of Pythias lodge in the recent issue of the California Pythian Star and D. O. K. K. Tiger, which is published in Los Angeles. There was a bircheye view of Glendale, and also the following reading matter:

"Glendale lodge No. 231 is among the live wires lately and on Tuesday, June 13, held a special Los Angeles county vice-chancellor night. At that time it requested those worthies to confer the Knight rank for the new clubroom of the Glendale lodge will soon be ready."

Fall in, Buddy,
Before the Elks'
Home, Tonight

"Fall in, buddies!" All Legion members are called on to be in front of the Elks' club on Colorado street tonight at 8:30 o'clock to take part in the mammoth parade to be held by the Legion and auxiliary.

The parade will be the official opening of the Legion and auxiliary drive for 1000 members.

The parade will be a real old-fashioned torchlight affair, with plenty of redfire and illumination. Both Glendale companies of the National Guard have been called out and will march with the Legion and auxiliary. A machine gun will be mounted on a truck.

All members of the Legion are requested to wear the uniforms in the parade.

The big event of the celebration will be a talk by Buron Fitts, former state commander of the American Legion. He will tell of the membership drive and the work being done in this state by the Legion for former service men.

Don't forget, comrades, the time: 8:30 p. m. The place: In front of the Elks' club. The purpose: Mammoth Legion torchlight parade. Wear your uniform if possible—but don't fail to be in the parade.

PEEPING TOM IS AGAIN REPORTED

ARTIST'S WIFE SAID TO HAVE BEEN DEPORTED

Mrs. Rose F. Burke.

Among the arrivals in New York on the French liner Chicago was Mrs. Rose F. Burke, wife of a New York artist, who is said to have been ordered to leave France after she shot up the lobby of the Hotel Terminus in Paris. She said the shooting was her protest against being ordered to leave the hotel, although she had been guilty of nothing improper.

American Legion Drive

The American Legion starts its membership drive in Glendale tonight. Every member of the local post is going to work toward one objective—one thousand members. There are 1500 men and women in this city eligible to membership in either the Legion or its auxiliary. These two organizations are going after these eligibles. They will not be content until at least one thousand of them have signed applications for membership in one or the other of the organizations.

There is a duty that every former service man who served during the war in either the army, navy or marine corps owes to himself, his family and his city. This is membership in the American Legion.

The American Legion is back of the former service man. It serves him every day. Practically every bill introduced in either the state senate or the United States congress for the benefit of the former soldier was proposed and fought for by the Legion.

The Legion does not forget the buddies who are sick in the hospital.

The Legion has not forgotten the families of buddies "gone west."

The employment committee of every Legion is constantly on the lookout, serving the comrade who is without work.

The Legion serves, and in return asks the support of former service men in that they affiliate with it, and by doing a share of the work, help the organization in the big tasks ahead.

The auxiliary is seeking members. Every mother, wife, sister and daughter of men who served during the recent war is eligible to membership in this organization. They should join!

Workers in the drive will call at the home of every eligible Glendelian. They will explain what the Legion has done, is doing and will continue to do for the ex-service men. Hear them and show the same spirit of cooperation shown in the days of the war when man, woman and child, regardless of color, nationality or creed, worked together for the common cause. Join the Legion!

Glendale post No. 127 of the American Legion is working now on a building program which, when completed, will give to Glendale an auditorium that has long been needed. The Legion is planning a home and auditorium that will be a monument to the former service men of Glendale. The auxiliary is helping to do it.

The plans for the Legion home in Glendale are of a magnitude seldom attempted by any organization.

The Legion is facing the task with the same determination that marked the American army when it launched its attack in the Argonne forest, or on any of the other battlefields of war-torn France or—ravished Belgium.

It is going ahead with the task of building a home with the same dauntless courage that in the days of the war made the American doughboy the wonder and pride of the world. If the Legion has the cooperation of every man and woman in Glendale it will put it over.

SCOUT LEADERS MEET TONIGHT

A. F. OF L. CONDEMNS BOLSHEVIKI

Endorses Government Policy Toward Soviet Regime

HAYES IS DEFEATED

Attempt to Railroad Resolution of Support for Reds Is a Failure

CINCINNATI, June 24.—The American Federation of Labor today decisively rejected a resolution demanding United States recognition of the Russian soviet. A resolution condemning the bolshevik and endorsing the United States government's policy was then adopted.

In the closing moments of debate, Max Hayes, Cleveland, one of the authors of the resolution demanding Russian recognition, read a telegram from Senator Borah, Idaho, declaring that American trade with Russia was impossible unless the Russian government was recognized. Further, Borah said, European peace and disarmament could not occur so long as Russia remains an outlaw nation.

Decision on the Russian question virtually completed the convention's work. Since the adjournment was expected late in the day.

LADIES' BALL CLUB TO PARADE HERE

Female Team Will Meet
Merchants' Team of Glendale

The members of the Glendale Merchants' baseball team and the Chicago ladies' ball club, will parade in Glendale this afternoon as a preliminary to the game to be played on the diamond at Park avenue and San Fernando road. This will be the first game played in the west by the ladies' club and is expected to prove a sensation.

Reports from towns where the ladies have played say that the team is unbeatable. They are said to be the best women athletes in the east. They play a real game of baseball and the Merchants are expecting a hard fight to retain their title as unbeatable. The Merchants have not lost a game this season.

The regular Sunday game will be played tomorrow, at the home diamond, against the Calvin-Whiting team from Los Angeles. This team has a good reputation for fielding and hitting and expects to clean up with Glendale. Five other teams have met the local players with the same idea. They all went home with the short-end of the score.

KIDDIES' CLINIC OPENS IN CITY

Dr. Warner, Osteopathist,
Opens Work at 10 o'clock

The first free osteopathic clinic for the poor children of Glendale, opened in the offices of Dr. Bion S. Warner, 108 North Brand boulevard, this morning. Up to 10 o'clock two children were started on a series of treatments which promise to relieve them of existing trouble, and several others had made appointments for later in the morning, and this afternoon. The prospects are that before this clinic is many days old, 20 or 30 of the youngsters of this city will be receiving treatments that promise to make, later, better men and women and more efficient citizens.

This clinic is being maintained solely for poor children, it being held that the parents of others are able to pay for the benefits received.

"This is not a money-making proposition," said Dr. Warner this morning. "During the past few weeks I have seen so many little ones who are in need of immediate attention, and upon inquiry have found that lack of money stands in the way of their complete recovery, that I decided that something of the kind should be started here."

Although this will be an osteopathic clinic, it will later be enlarged to include several medical physicians. The X-ray work will be done by the McGillis and Leap company, 103 1/2 North Brand.

GLENDALE DRAWS DENTIST FROM BAY CITY

Dr. F. T. Noehle of Illinois, Hears of Fame
in North

Another man from the east has visited Glendale and become so impressed with the progressiveness of the city that he has decided to locate here.

Dr. F. T. Noehle, a dentist from Kenosha, Ill., spent two hours in Glendale yesterday, and has decided to make his home here. He came to San Francisco from his eastern home. He and his wife were looking for a location on the coast, away from the cold, damp weather of the east.

Dr. Noehle said last night: "My wife and I arrived in San Francisco several days ago, seeking a new location. All we heard in San Francisco was 'see Glendale.' Everyone was talking Glendale, thinking Glendale, and advertising it as the fastest growing city in America. We became filled with the desire to see this city, and made the trip to Southern California for the sole purpose of looking over Glendale and finding out what makes it the fastest growing city. After spending several hours here we are sold on the city, and plan to locate here."

Dr. Noehle and his wife spent two hours questioning E. F. Sanders, assistant secretary of the chamber of commerce, and, after the interview, they set a date for next week, when they will spend an entire day driving through the residential and business section of the city. After that they are returning to the east to sell their property and move to Glendale.

'AS A MAN THINKS' IS REV. ISAAC'S SUBJECT

Wednesday Evening Lectures to Discontinue for Two Months

"As a Man Thinketh" was the caption of the last lecture but one in a course which Rev. E. Morgan Isaac has delivered every Wednesday evening since last autumn, on psychological and metaphysical subjects. The lectures will be discontinued through July and August.

"If I were asked what is the most outstanding thought of the day," he began, "I would answer the power of thought." This discovery is being emphasized more and more, and has come largely through the study of psychology. We have been driven by it into an investigation of the background of thought, the causation of things, and we realize that any energy existing prior to the power of thought must be the creator of thought. Spirit must be loving, intelligent will at least.

"Coming to the world of human-kind, we find that there the creator of human energy is thought. In our past thinking we have created a great gulf between the finite and the infinite. One of the most remarkable discoveries of science is that there is one infinite mind, which has created all there is. What is this material world and where did it come from? By studying the numerous chemicals, scientists have found that all came from one source—either illiterate. Out of that world of causation, by 'the law of the Lord' which we find in the Scriptures, everything is produced, in variety yet in harmony. It is conceded by most psychologists that our subconscious mind is part of the universal. What one deeply and persistently desires, the subconsciousness works for, of necessity. If the desire is in accordance with universal law, it works out for good; if against the law, it will destroy you. 'Whatever ye desire, believe that ye shall receive, and ye shall have it.' This is an eternal, unchangeable truth. The individual subconsciousness is impersonal and becomes person in our thinking. All one's ideals come out of the subconsciousness. No one has ever composed a piece of music out of the conscious mind, or painted a picture, although it may be criticized by the consciousness afterward.

"How can we eradicate errors of thought, wrong teachings? By sowing in the subconsciousness the seeds of the best that we can find, holding ourselves receptive to further truth as it presents itself to us. It is hard to change when we have thought on certain lines for a long time. The best thing to do when we find some disagreeable or mistaken thought in our consciousness is to forget it. Do not worry about it, but turn the mind in another direction. We can change what we are by impressing our subconsciousness properly.

"Think prosperity and it will come to you. Feel poor all the time and you will be so. Don't bother the subconsciousness with details of your desire, how it shall be accomplished, but let it be worked out independently of your objective self. It will not fail. Never was greater philosophy uttered than the Bible statement, 'As a man thinketh, so is he.' You may say, 'There isn't a thing the matter with me,' the real me that is going to leave the body some day and go on forever, and if you say it many times a day for a week you will certainly feel better." He is able to give exceeding abundantly, above all things whatsoever we ask, according to the power that is within us. That is a law which can not fail. All things are possible to him that believeth. Conditions are the result of wrong thinking."

COLORADO ZONE FIGHT STILL UNSETTLED

City Trustees Hear Opposition and Postpone Vote

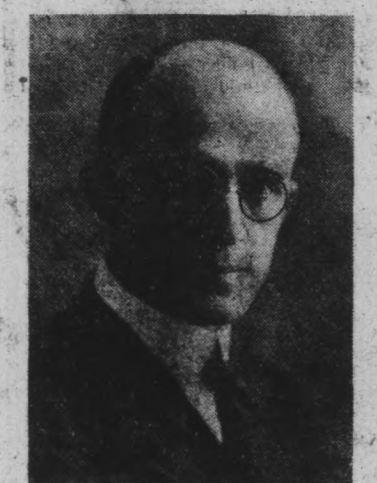

Weekly meetings are still held by the new board of city trustees, and last Monday night was no exception to the rule of crowded attendance on the part of citizens deeply interested in various matters under advisement by the council. More than 50 persons with decided opinions on the proposed change of the zoning ordinance, affecting parts of Colorado boulevard, came, expecting the trustees would announce a decision in the matter, but they were not ready to do so. They will hear further discussion next Monday evening, then vote upon the question.

All three members of the water board were present by request and answered many queries about the condition of the water system. They stated that there is 30 per cent more water than last year, with about 21 per cent more used, and 24 feet higher than in previous years. The board has decided not to make any more water main extensions outside the city limits, and the decision is upheld by the trustees. However, the water board asked for an opinion by the city attorney on the matter of being compelled to add the service outside the city. At the present time Eagle Rock city is furnishing water to 800 consumers in Rockdale and Annandale. There was some talk of calling for a bond issue of $100,000, to extend

EVANGELICAL WORK TO BEGIN SUNDAY AT EAGLE ROCK

Chester S. Prout to Preach on Bible and Archaeology

An evangelistic campaign is to begin in Eagle Rock city in a large gospel tabernacle recently pitched on West Colorado boulevard and CHESTER S. PROUT, Who Opens Evangelistic Campaign at Eagle Rock Saturday.

Rowland avenue, Sunday evening, at 8 o'clock. The subject of the opening lecture as announced by Evangelist Chester S. Prout is, "Wonderful Discoveries of Archaeology and Bible Inspiration." The subject will deal directly with recent excavations in Bible lands and the flood of illuminating facts which confirm the Bible records will be forcefully and strikingly illustrated by stereopticon pictures. Here you may see the ruins excavated, the tablets and monuments of centuries past.

The evangelist has spent years lecturing in American cities. He is not sensational or emotional, but scholarly, Biblical, scientific and logical. He reveres, trusts and preaches the Word. His audiences are led to a deeper love for the Scriptures. His clear, forceful presentation of Bible themes confounds infidels, confuses higher critics, and brings comfort to the wavering. His slogan throughout the series is, "Unconditional Surrender to Jesus Christ." He extends to the public a hearty welcome to attend each service.

The gospel tabernacle has been fitted up with about 400 comfortable chairs, the floor has a thick carpet of clean shavings and it is brilliantly lighted.

Special music is provided. Professor DeNunzio will play his harp and the Jubilee quartet will render beautiful music and the following subjects will be discussed through the week:

Monday night—"The Challenge of the Gospel to An Age of Reconstruction."

Tuesday night—"Why Did Not an All-Powerful God Destroy the Devil?"

Wednesday night—"The Physical Crisis the World is Facing—Humanity's Call to the Christian Physician."

Thursday night—"Looking Toward a Warlike World, and the Armageddon Prophecy."

Friday night—"Christ's Ideal for the World at Strife and His Second Coming."

Saturday night—"A Message to You from the Sun, Moon and Stars." Services to continue.

MRS. M. T. LEE IS INSTALLED AS CLUB LEADER

Twentieth Century Women Hold Function Amid Beautiful Decorations

At the last meeting of the Women's Twentieth Century Club, on Thursday afternoon, the officers elected for next season were installed by Mrs. C. W. Young, who had been appointed installing officer. She placed a beautiful basket of flowers, to which ribbons of different colors were attached, in the center of the stage, then one by one called up the new officials. Handing an end of ribbon to each, she addressed a few appropriate words to the winning candidates, in her ever-happy way. The ladies, in their pretty summer gowns, the ribbons that linked them together, and the artistically arranged flowers, made a most attractive picture. The outgoing officers were not forgotten by the speaker; after appreciative mention of their labors during the club year, she requested all present to rise as a token of their esteem, and this courtesy was unanimously paid the retiring board.

The personnel of the new officers is as follows: President, Mrs. M. T. Lee (second term); first vice president, Mrs. R. W. Stephens; second vice president, Mrs. A. C. Fisk; third vice president, Mrs. C. M. Hensley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. W. Hunt; recording secretary, Mrs. J. H. Mosher; treasurer, Mrs. J. C. Clausen; auditor, Mrs. Arthur Donestie; directors, Mrs. R. L. McKitt, Mrs. Hal Baly, Mrs. A. G. Reily.

The judges in the short story contest, which was open to all members of the club, announced that the prize had been awarded to Mrs. Harold Ide Cruzan, 440 Montefiore avenue, for her sketch, "The Inner Urge." A communication from the Ebell club of San Fernando, signed by its president and secretary, was read. It stated that the history and landmarks department of the club had for its object the preservation of all historical names and landmarks; that their valley was named for the old San Fernando mission; that efforts were now being made by some parties for commercial purposes to change the name to Los Angeles valley. Therefore, it was resolved that the members of said club, earnestly protest against the changing of the name of the valley, and further resolved that a copy of the resolution be sent to every club in the valley and in the Los Angeles district of clubs, asking them to protest against it and put forth every effort to defeat such a change of name. A motion to submit the communication to the Eagle Rock chamber of commerce was made and carried.

The names of 12 women who had been admitted to membership since the previous meeting, were read.

There was a short program, consisting of the reading of "The Going of the White Swan," by Sir Gilbert Parkery, which was interpreted by Mrs. Lillian B. Marshall, a member of the club, in her always masterly style; and a dance requiring much suppleness and grace, which was most creditably given by little Miss Evelyn Nair, daughter of a member.

An informal reception to the new members of the year just ended followed, with the serving of fruit punch and wafers.

HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN FLAG

Written Exclusively for the Glendale Daily Press

By ELLA B. POWELL

(Chapter II)

The American flag is older than that of any of the other leading nations of the world. It was officially adopted by congress on June 14, 1777. The French flag was not established until 1794; that of Great Britain in 1801; that of Spain in 1785; the Swedish and Norwegian flags were decreed in 1817, and the flag of Italy was established in 1848.

Previous to the time of the revolution, the colonies used the flags of Great Britain, but as the feeling of rebellion against the mother country grew, the designs of the banners changed. There appeared a great variety of devices and mottoes evidencing the growing spirit of independence. One of the favorite devices was a pine tree, typifying the sturdy and rugged character of the people, and bearing the motto, "An Appeal to Heaven." Another one was a rattlesnake with the motto, "Don't Tread on Me."

Some of the flags had the rattlesnake cut into thirteen parts to represent the colonies, with the motto, "Unite or Die." This motto was significant, for it shows that the colonies realized that without union there could be no hope of safety. Finally a union was effected, and then the device was changed into a united snake, typifying the consummation of the union.

The rattlesnake came near being the national emblem, instead of the eagle.

As the feeling of rebellion against British tyranny crystallized, the need of having a national flag became evident. It was necessary to have one common standard for the colonies to rally around.

Late in 1776 congress appointed a committee to decide on such an emblem. They met at the American camp at Cambridge, and adopted a banner of thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, bearing the symbol of the union flag of Great Britain, the combined crosses of St. George and St. Andrew. The adoption of the combined crosses showed that though the colonies had united for defense against England, they still acknowledged her sovereignty. The seven red and six white stripes designated the number of the colonies. This flag was adopted by congress.

Amid wild cheers and the booming of cannon, this first national flag to float over the American people was flung to the breeze on January 2, 1776, at the camp at Cambridge.

By a strange coincidence, the King's speech on the trouble with the colonies was received that same day in Boston, and was sent out by the commander of the British troops, under a flag of truce, to Washington at Cambridge. It excited the people to the greatest degree of rage and indignation, and filled them with a firmer determination to fight for liberty. The King's speech was burned as the new flag was unfurled.

As the struggle with England went on, a complete separation from the mother country was inevitable. Many were opposed to it during the early years of the war. They were fighting to obtain their rights and freedom from oppression, but they did not think a separation necessary. But as England became more overbearing and heartless in her treatment of the colonies, and made every effort to crush them into subjection, it became evident that further compromise was impossible.

On July 4, 1776, the second continental congress assembled in Philadelphia, adopted the declaration of independence, drawn up by Thomas Jefferson, declaring to the world that the thirteen North American colonies were free and independent states, and repudiating any connection with Great Britain. The symbol of the British union, the combined crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, was blotted from the flag, for the colonies wanted to destroy every sign of allegiance to the British crown, and it became immediately necessary to design a new flag.

Mr. and Mrs. Conger and daughter Elizabeth, of North Brand boulevard, left today on a motor trip to Portland, Seattle and other points of interest, expecting to be gone a month. Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Farmer will occupy their residence during their absence.

BENNER REPORTS ON SCOUT WORK

Record Deals With Verdugo Hills District Organizations

The June issue of the Verdugo Hills Scout has been devoted entirely to a report by Scout Executive H. F. Benner of work accomplished by the council during the first quarter of its organization.

The record of work in this district deals first with the organization of the district, involving Glendale, Case Verdugo, Burbank, Roscoe, Sunland, Tujunga, La Crescenta, Montrose and Eagle Rock. In addition to the organization of new troops in the various towns and the reorganization of old troops wherever needed.

The present membership in this district totals approximately 160 boys, an increase of 120 per cent over the year 1921. These boys are directed in their work by Scout leaders of unquestioned ability and character.

Hundreds of individual "good turns" occupy a prominent place in the report. The list of "good turns" done by the local Scouts reported at headquarters range from helping a blind man across the street to assisting in the distribution of literature for the Salvation Army, Near East Relief and Forest Fire Prevention week.

Commenting on this phase of the work, Scout Executive Benner said: "During the ensuing year we hope to make this special field of service even greater, continually placing emphasis on the 'daily good turn' without thought of compensation."

The financing of the movement was also told in the report. Mr. Benner told of the division of the district budget of $4500 and apportioning of the amounts to be raised to the various cities. Glendale was pledged to raise $3000 for the work, Burbank $1000 and Eagle Rock $500.

This budget is being secured through the sale of stock in the future citizenship of the community. This stock sells at $10 a share. The stock pays dividends in Americanism and character guaranteed. The greater portion of the stock has already been sold.

Truths in Epigram

There is no man so good, who, were he to submit all his thoughts and actions to the laws, would not deserve hanging ten times in his life.—Montaigne (1533-1592).

There is no work of genius which has not been the delight of mankind, no word of genius to which the human heart and soul have not sooner or later responded.—Lowell (1819-1891).

CALIFORNIA'S NEXT SENATOR

In the news that Charles Cadwell Moore will accept the republican nomination to the senate, the people of this great state read a message of good cheer. They were conscious of a feeling of exultation.

Republicans knew that a man in every sense worthy and competent had consented to hold their standards. Californians of other political faiths were instantly aware that the interests of the state would be in safe hands. The acceptance by Mr. Moore must have caused a lessening of political hopes on the part of those opposing the republican party, and seeking nomination. With the sentiment of Californians behind him, because he is representative of the best sentiment of the commonwealth, Mr. Moore may be regarded as invincible.

It was the genius of Mr. Moore before all else that made a success of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. As executive head of the movement he displayed a fine capacity. Obstacles that would have discouraged another he met and overcame as a part of the day's work. By that experience he won wide fame. His personality was impressed upon Californians, and countless visitors took away with them the conviction that in meeting him they had met a great man. But to his old friends and associates this proof of his high ability was not a revelation. They knew it before he had been selected to head and direct the vast enterprise.

The coming campaign will be Mr. Moore's first introduction to politics. He is a man of large affairs, prominent in the business of San Francisco, owner of large holdings in this end of the state. He stands for all that is best in commercial life. The honor that has come to him was far from being of his seeking. It was urged upon him, and he saw that in consenting to run, he would be performing a duty to the commonwealth, and to the national administration.

Most happily the opinions of Mr. Moore touching affairs of national or international moment, are in consonance with the opinions of Californians. He understands the problems of the Pacific coast and is equipped to voice the sentiments of the people living in this region. He knows that California favors the four-power pact. This treaty is in behalf of world peace. He will not conceive it to be his part to heckle and hamper the administration as it strives to establish and preserve peace.

The republicans of California, indeed, all the citizens of California, are to be congratulated. They need have no fear that as senator Mr. Moore will undertake to be a law unto himself, and set his mind against the principles, and close it to pleas of his constituency. He is republican, but first of all, he is a citizen of California, devoted to its prosperity, and imbued with its beliefs.

MODERN WONDERS

Recently a lad was badly injured in an accident at Catalina. The facilities essential to proper treatment were not at hand. The doctor decided that the patient must be brought to the mainland. What next? Why it was all very simple. The doctor got into a flying machine, the injured boy in his arms, and a flight was made to San Pedro in record time. There the police were in waiting with an ambulance, and the party was hurried to a hospital at Long Beach. Meanwhile a Los Angeles specialist had been called by radio and as the airship was darting through the fog, and the police were getting the ambulance ready, the specialist was engaged in breaking the speed laws between Los Angeles and Long Beach. He was at the hospital ready to take charge of the case by the time the party had arrived.

The pity of it all is that the little fellow was too badly hurt for skill and ingenuity to save him. But the effort was worth while.

This series of incidents may not be regarded as remarkable. It called into play forces that are perfectly at human command now, and are coming to be regarded as quite commonplace. Yet only a few years ago the automobile, the simplest instrumentality figuring in the episode, was unknown. For years after that there was no method of flying. Men had dreamed of flying, and won only ridicule. Until very recently the radio had not been conceived even vaguely. Yet a boy is hurt on an island, and in a few moments is in care of a doctor ashore, through the use of all these agencies.

The world is moving right along. Life is a succession of wonders, of miracles performed, and of impossibilities made easy of accomplishment.

POLITICAL STRATEGY

The political strategy that takes the form of trying to fool the people, fails of its purpose; it cannot fool them. When a politician has allied himself to interests opposed by his constituents, and then begins shouting for some reform that already has almost unanimous endorsement, he does not win a pat on the back. On the contrary he really merits a wallop the impact of which ought to knock the political life out of him.

There is general and fervent support of a child labor law. When the supreme court decided that such a measure, as framed and passed, was unconstitutional, regret was universal. There were intimations of belief that the tribunal should have stretched the point a little in order to preserve an enactment, and support a principle, so highly valued. The serious thought, however, was that the principle must not be sacrificed, even if to save it necessitated a change in the fundamental statute.

Immediately politicians, widely discredited for their misconduct, took a leap into the limelight, mouths agape and arms flying, shouting that they would save the children. Yes indeed. Let the employers of wee lads and lassies beware! All of which is recognized of course as "a play to the galleries." To stand up boldly for a plan that has complete endorsement, and which faces not even a remote chance of ultimate failure, is not a showing of unique patriotism or of unusual concern for the little ones. It is the mere expression of a sentiment entertained by the average citizen. Its advocacy by a discredited politician, as something for which the loudly bawling orator deserves credit, becomes a piece of singularly bald impertinence, the attempt to create capital, camouflage a questionable past, and to fool the public. It can't be done.

Meanwhile, a plan will be perfected for ending child labor as it now prevails in unenlightened communities, an outcome of which the tricky politician was assured before striking an attitude of buncombe and pretense.

The police of a northern city are looking for a man named Caster, and find that he is hard to take.

The Business of Being Beautiful

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Lillian Russell has passed from this world. Every one who passes leaves something, something that cannot be weighed with any scales nor measured with any foot rule, and yet something that abides in the race.

This intangible something, this spiritual heritage, is more important than any material property a man may dispose of by his will.

What did Lillian Russell leave?

Her business was being beautiful. No one seems to deny that she was a beautiful woman. There are many beautiful women in the world and perhaps the business of being beautiful is as important as the business of consolidating steel companies or constructing the state of Czechoslovakia.

Beauty is an endowment, something for which its possessor is in nowise responsible, even as a talent for playing the violin, writing verses, or fixing clocks.

And the way beautiful women handle their equipment of charm has probably as much to do with the happiness or misery of the world as any other one thing.

From all accounts, Lillian Russell used her beauty for the welfare of the world. She had the beautiful traits of spirit that ought to go with a beautiful face, but do not always. For she was kindly, sympathetic, cheerful and courageous.

In her footsteps there sprang up flowers of smiles and laughter even as daisies spring up along where the mythical goddess passed. In deciding the great question, What is Worth While? surely there is cogency in the argument that one has not lived in vain who has taken even a little bit from the pile of human care and brooding, and added a little bit to the pile of human cheer.

Surely gentleness and agreeableness are foremost among virtues and have their place among the moralities.

'Tis a troubled world and what we all need is that liquor of the gods called Joy which strengthens the life force.

Every beautiful woman is a high priestess of humanity.

In the hands of beauty are perhaps our most fateful issues.

Men have climbed to fame because they have slaughtered thousands, or because they have taken away vast properties from their fellows and stored them in their own house, or because they have written well or spoken movingly. But perhaps an epitaph even more to be coveted is the one that Arnold Bennett uses concerning one of his characters, and one that could surely be applied to Lillian Russell:

"She cheered us all up a bit."

THE LETTER

Private secretary to the president for years had been a stepping stone to officialdom. The office, which had recently become vacant, was to be filled by one of the men in the new business department, the selection to be made as the result of a contest ending May 1.

"I am determined to win this contest," said Jim to his mother one evening.

He wrote feverishly. He laid his plans at night. He was up first, at the office first; he was first to greet his customers, and he was posted first, the winner, at the end of the contest.

On May 2 at 9 o'clock he and Frank Terry (the latter had run a close second) were waiting in the president's private office. The head of the corporation entered.

"Gentlemen," said the president, "I want you to write Cosgrove and Company the advantages of choosing a secretary by means of a contest such as you are participating in. When you have finished bring me the letter and I will sign it."

Thirty minutes later Frank Terry was knocking on the president's door. He was all smiles, for he had finished first. When Jim arrived in another ten minutes the latter looked worried.

"It took you longer than it did Terry," commented the president as he glanced over Jim's letter.

Jim was shaking. He saw Terry smiling confidently, and his heart sank within him.

"I had to ask the stenographer to rewrite the letter that it might be in proper form," said Jim hesitatingly.

"The form and style of your letter are exceptional," said the president with a smile. "Where did you obtain your knowledge of correspondence?"

"I have been studying at night," said Jim, looking very happy.

Frank Terry put out his hand. "Congratulations! Jim, the best of luck."

or will this incident only be the beginning of a determined fight.

Right on with this incident be only the beginning.

THE LISTENING POST

An engineer was marking out a line for a railroad. Over a great extent of territory. Whose topography was varied. There were plains, rivers, chasms and mountains.

There were only a few things to be considered, so the engineer was told. The road must be straight. And the grades must not be heavy. And it was his business to see to those two things.

That is what the owners of the road wanted. The plains were easy. All it was necessary to do was to level slightly uneven surfaces and lay the ties and rails.

And the work went along swimmingly. If all country were like this engineers would hardly be necessary. The road nearly built itself.

But when the work had progressed to a certain distance the engineer came upon a stream. Rushing and deep and without places for piers or abutments. And the men who worked with the engineer were puzzled.

They said the end of the project had come. But the engineer went back a distance. And made a survey. "We cannot go over the river," he said. "We cannot go through it." "So we will go under it."

And the railroad passed this obstacle by a tunnel beneath the stream. It took a long time to build.

But eventually it was done. And the road came to a gorge. A great chasm between mountains.

And again the faint hearted were dismayed. The building of the road was stopped again they said.

But the engineer surveyed. Figured and calculated and studied. And he said at last: "We cannot go under the gorge." "We cannot go through it." "So we will go over it." And the gorge was bridged.

And again the survey came flat against a mountain top. Granite, forbidding, steep. And the end of the project seemed at hand. The passage seemed impossible. And again the engineer studied. "We cannot go over the mountain," he said. "We cannot go under it." "So we will go through it." And the road passed through a tunnel in the mountain.

Eventually the road was finished. It met all requirements. It was straight and with passable grades. And served a useful purpose. For the engineer had learned that all matters of construction are beset with obstacles.

But he knew that all obstacles were to be overcome. Either by going under them. By going over them. Or by going through them. All it takes is the resolution to get by them.

SONGS OF THE POETS

The Children Band—By Sir Aubrey De Vere—(1877-1846)

All holy influences dwell within. The breast of childhood: instincts fresh from God. Inspire it ere the heart beneath the rod Of grief hath bled, or caught the plague of sin. How mighty was that fervour which could win Its way to infant souls!—and was the sod Of Palestine by infant Croises trod?

Like Joseph went they forth, or Benjamin. In all their touching beauty to redeem? And did their soft lips kiss the Sepulchre? Alas! the lovely pageant as a dream Faded! They sank not through ignoble fear; They felt not Moslem steel. By mountain, stream, In sands in ferns they died—no mother near.

Testing the Possibilities of Life in Other Worlds

By ISABEL M. LEWIS, of the U. S. Naval Observatory

Is the planet, Venus, inhabited? The discovery of the absence of water vapor and oxygen in the spectrum of Venus made recently by Dr. Charles E. St. John and Seth B. Nicholson at Mt. Wilson observatory, raises this question.

The method used by these astronomers was to obtain such a large scale spectrum of Venus that a separation of the lines of like elements originating in the atmosphere of the two planets would be produced due to the great relative motion of the two planets. If, for instance, the oxygen existed in both atmospheres there would be a doubling of the lines of oxygen in the large scale spectrum of Venus, one line arising from oxygen in the earth's atmosphere and the other from oxygen in the atmosphere of Venus.

Lines due to water vapor and oxygen were absent in appreciable amounts in the spectrum of Venus, it was found. This might be taken as conclusive proof that these essentials to life do not exist in the atmosphere of Venus.

It would be interesting to see this method of separating lines in the atmosphere of the earth and another planet applied in the case of Mars. Here conditions are quite different. The atmosphere of Mars is extremely rare and most of the solar rays probably penetrate all the way to the surface before they are reflected to our eyes.

So far the spectroscopic evidence as to the existence of water vapor in the atmosphere of Mars is very conflicting, but we know from other considerations such as the melting of polar caps, seasonal changes and the occasional obliteration of the surface by mists and haze that water vapor does exist on Mars. The relative motion of the earth and Mars is much less than that of the earth and Venus, but if a spectrum could be obtained on a scale large enough to separate the lines originating in the two atmospheres something of interest might be learned of the composition of the atmosphere of Mars close to its surface.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

WILLIAM'S MANIA

[Chicago Journal of Commerce]

Word from Europe is that William Hohenzollern now has a mania for religion. He always had it. As prime of the Lutheran State Church of Prussia his crazy theology made his associates mourn. Before war began in 1914 he had given evidence of many religious delusions, one of which was his belief that he was about the only living man authorized to deliver to mankind the word of Divinity. Many German statesmen, particularly those of Prussia, had nothing but contempt for religious convictions; but they used the word of using them to strengthen the power of the emperor.

But William was a different kind of a religious proposition that he was sufficiently intimate with God to be commissioned spokesman in matters of religion. At the same time he always warped religious communications into harmony with his faith in the sword as the most potent instrument of his "good German God" in the conversion of the world to his peculiar brand of brutality.

Now, in the twilight of his career, with power gone and contempt for the mighty human forces in other hands, he turns to prayer and religious literature, seeking some consolation to the forms of worship which he once sought to divert to himself.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

"Results in Maine and Minnesota primaries show radicalism on the wane," states one of the papers that would be likely to say that soft of thing. Pure piffle, of course.

When Quay, Platt, Penrose and Knox were high commanders of the old guard, they built up a tradition that they represented the great American government. Any trick that tended to keep them in power was proper and patriotic. Any attempt to wrest authority from these champions of their own partisan control was treason. The man to kick over the traces was a dangerous radical.

Lodge, Brandegee and a few others, endeavor to preserve this tradition, and use it for a working principle, but not with complete success.

The "radicalism" reported as on the wane is the protest registered first in Indiana, then in Pennsylvania, and then in Iowa, with other places to be heard from.

As a matter of fact it is not radicalism at all. It is an expression of the plain common sense of the people.

The republican party can afford to be glad to observe an aroused electorate, and if wise will fall in step with the same.

The state of Nevada is in 'mighty poor business in trying to reopen the Pickford divorce case. Certainly by annulling the divorce now it would accomplish much more harm than good.

Nevada has a rotten system of divorce laws. Probably it would be wiser to revise the system than to spend its efforts in pointing to its own failure.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

This morning a large mess of statistics was dumped on my desk and I was forced to note the number of business failures in the past twelve months.

I am not a business man. Yet the one thing that seems absolutely sure to me is that success is within reach of any business man, always provided he knows how to say no to unknown persons who want to open accounts, and that his location is fairly good.

The rule for success is an infallible one. At least, it has never failed in my knowledge.

"Give your customers real service."

Last summer I took the old bus out for a tour through the country. And as soon as I was so far away that I lacked the nerve to turn back the heavens opened and the rains descended upon me. It wasn't a storm. It was a cloudburst. By the middle of the afternoon the car looked like a rolling ball of mud. I squashed and squeaked up to the largest garage in the town where I proposed to spend a few days.

"Will you wash this mud off while it is still wet?" I asked.

"We never wash cars in the daytime," was the answer. "That is done by the night force. There's a little yellow garage on the next street run by some niggers, who may wash your car for you."

I drove around to the little yellow garage. Two or three courteous, respectful colored men sprang to me. They washed the car as carefully as though it had been a watch. I was able to garage the bus with them, and each morning I found it dusted off and the glass polished and the grease-cups turned up—and the radiator full. They did two or three little jobs for me and did them well, and charged a decent, honest, un-New-York-like price. I've been back to that town half a dozen times and I always go to that little yellow garage. So do all my friends.

Oh, the big garage is still going. Probably making money, too, for it has the best location on the best street, and there is enough tourist business to keep it full. But that little yellow garage is now a big yellow garage. The two or three colored men have become a dozen colored men. One of the town bankers is part owner of a business that is certain to grow and prosper.

A year ago a colored man and his wife opened a restaurant in a small town that I know of. There were other restaurants there. They did not have a particularly good location. The exterior of their building is rather unattractive.

In one year they have paid $9000 for the property. They paid it out of profits.

Two or three of the other restaurants have failed.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA E. STEWART

Half truths are such dangerous things! They are the weapon of the consciously weak the consciously cowardly; those who feel that. A lie which is all a lie may be met and fought outright. But a lie which is part a truth is a harder matter to fight.

One of the highest types of moral bravery is found in the man who is big enough to suffer half-lies for the sake of the larger cause for which he is fighting, who is willing to suffer from the dissemination of half truths and insinuations which he knows the unthinking will instantly assimilate as the whole truth; who goes on quietly, undismayed, while the wolves are barking and yapping about his feet.

There are causes larger by far than people. There are wrongs so deeply entrenched in political forces or religious rivalries that it takes the effort of years, centuries it may be, to replace them with the right. Each generation can only do its bit at the most. They allow of no sweeping revolution. At the most only a constant hacking at their roots. Each hack brings a yelp of protest from some, and a "It can't be done" from others, while there are also those subtle enough to outwardly assent, the while they plan the downfall of the ax-wielder in their hearts. Slow-growing, deeply entrenched wrongs are not conquered in a day, professional "reformers" to the contrary. Slowly, carefully, public sentiment must be influenced, public usage and custom altered.

The man to be honored is the man who is untiring and unashamed in his efforts, the man who can swallow sneers and innuendoes, gaining moral strength from the consciousness of inward probity when outwardly assailed.

DO YOU KNOW THAT?

SENIOR CLASS OF DOROTHY HUNT BAPTIST YOUNG '22 CLOSES ITS ACTIVITIES

Farewell Dance Is Held in Girls' Gymnasium at High

The last of the activities for the senior class of 1922 was the senior-alumni farewell dance, given Friday night in the girls' gymnasium at the high school. The past two weeks have been busy ones for seniors with their closing school work and their gay parties and festivities. And what could be a more pleasant way to end four years of hard study, than by a dance? This was probably the last time all members of the class will be together at one time, and the evening was a jolly one from beginning to end.

The lighting effect was very pretty, the light being covered with shades of many colors, and during the evening, a brilliant spotlight flashed to and fro among the dancing couples. The lights served as the only decorations.

Music for dancing was furnished by William Bode's orchestra and was the best ever. Refreshing punch was served during the evening.

The committee in charge of the dance included Willard Goertz, chairman; Miss Marjorie Yarrick, program; Miss Fern Peters, refreshments; Sam Thompson, decorations; Victor Colburn, music and Paul Hutchinson, floor.

The programs for the dance were cleverly gotten up, being of imitation leather. To Albert Hewitt, credit should go for the pretty lighting effect with the spotlight. Patrons of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. George U. Moysé, Mr. and Mrs. Aleck Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Huntley, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Toll, Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Webb, Mr. and Mrs. Irving H. Oliver, and Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Hayhurst.

REV. SNIVELY TO DEDICATE NEW CHURCH

Well Known Dictator Arrives for Ceremony of July 2

Rev. George E. Snively arrived in Glendale Thursday from Lewisville, Ill., and at once began to develop his plans for the dedication of the new Central Christian church building on Sunday, July 2. Meetings with the men of the church were held Thursday and Friday nights, and the program laid out.

Rev. Snively has had 15 years' experience dedicating church houses and his plans, which at first seemed rather peculiar to the local members, all proved to be successful. It is needless to say that Rev. Snively has the heartiest cooperation of all the members of the congregation and the faithful pastor, Rev. C. A. Cole.

Cantilever Shoe

For Men, Women, and Children

If Your Shoe Isn't Flexible

If the arch of your shoe isn't flexible, like the arch of the foot, it prevents the foot muscles from exercising as nature intended. And it is that restraint which accounts for many tired feet and weakened arches. But in the flexible-shank Cantilever Shoe the muscles are exercised with every step. The shoe harmonizes with the foot, the muscles have free play, circulation is improved and the foot grows healthy and normal. Cantilevers are good-looking comfort shoes, the lines are graceful, the leathers are of fine quality. They add much to your appearance in smartness, and in the easy carriage which they encourage. The natural inner sole line provides toe room and allows the foot to lie in its comfortable, straight-forward position. This—and the set of the heel—induces good posture.

When you lace a Cantilever Shoe the under-arch sole draws up to conform to the curve of the foot arch and supports it. This smooth fit and the freedom of the flexible shank keep the arches strong. Try a pair.

IS SHOWERED AT GORDON HOME

Bride-Elect of Arthur Sullivan Is Received Amid Beautiful Decorations

Miss Dorothy Hunt was guest of honor Friday evening at a delightful miscellaneous shower, given by Mrs. Francis Gordon, 334 West Elk avenue. Miss Hunt is one of the season's brides-elect, and her marriage to Albert E. Sullivan will take place July 12, at St. Mark's Episcopal church.

Upon entering the Gordon home, one found the porch and living-room radiant with Japanese lanterns in pastel shades. From each doorway hung a white wedding bell with festoons of white crepe paper, from which gracefully swung dainty white ribbons tied at the end with pink sweetpeas. A large kewpie dressed as a bride attracted much attention. Other decorations were baskets of pink sweetpeas and baby's breath.

The evening, for the most part, was devoted to "bumbo," first prize going to Mrs. Louis Lewis and consolation prize to Miss Louise Ayala.

Upon answering a knock at the door, Mrs. Gordon found a small chap in the person of Gordon Cook, who stated that he had a message for Miss Dorothy Hunt. Miss Hunt went to the door and found there a large basket filled with beautiful and useful gifts, which were then opened and displayed.

Following this, the hostess served delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake, each plate also bearing a white favor basket filled with mint candies. She was assisted in serving by Miss Isabel Yates and Miss Louise Ayala.

DEMPSEY IS BROKE AND ADMITS FACT

OMAHA, June 24.—Jack Dempsey, world's champion heavyweight scrapper, is "broke."

That's what he told Omaha friends when he stopped here en route to New York city, where his manager, Jack Kearns, has arranged an exhibition tour to "keep the wolf from the door."

"No kidding—I'm really financially embarrassed," the champion said. "That $300,000 I got for whipping Carpentier has dwindled like sugar in water. Money doesn't last day a year."

Income taxes, other taxes, lawsuits, living expenses in Los Angeles, his European trip and care of his parents are some of the reasons why Jack says he will have to get to work pretty soon or starve.

The family was seated at dinner, and the conversation turned to school lessons, much to the consternation and disgust of little Cynthia.

"What period in English history are you studying?" asked her father.

"The Stuarts," said Cynthia curtly.

There was a long pause as father thought out a question to put to his daughter. He was a little hazy about facts, but at last he propounded his poser.

"What was the first thing James I. did when he came to the throne?" asked father solemnly.

"Sat on it, I suppose," replied Cynthia, with calm conviction.

GERMANY TRIMS CASH GOING AND COMING

Charges Visitors Tax, at Pre-war Rate of Exchange

"How Americans Are Paying the German Indemnity," is the title of an article in a recent number of the Literary Digest, which describes what appears to be an organized campaign to rob, cheat and defraud American visitors, and which the German government, various German municipalities, German shopkeepers and hotel managers all take part. It is hinted that the Germans may be planning to pay their indemnity entirely from the forced contributions of the Yankee.

As a starter, every American entering Germany is required to deposit 1000 marks with the government. "It is politely called a deposit," said an official of the American Express company, who is authority for the news of this recent German custom. "But, it is a deposit for keeps and on some pretext or other it remains in Germany." After this introduction into the country, the American visitor is doubly or quadruply charged for everything, up to the point of "all the traffic will bear."

It is said that in the Prussian parliament, who met in reassembly, a proposal will come up to charge foreign visitors to Prussia a visitors' tax, to be fixed in gold marks and collected at the pre-war rate of exchange. The tentative proposed charge is four gold marks per day. Visitors, therefore, are to be charged $1 per day for the privilege of spending their other dollars in Prussia. Numerous complaints have been made by Americans who have been molested by the German government, German shopkeepers or German hotel managers, have been confirmed by many American diplomatic and consular representatives, who have frequently informed the state department at Washington, requesting intervention.

On the bulletin boards of the American consulate general in Berlin, as well as in all American official buildings throughout Germany, there appeared an official warning to Americans, telling them not to make purchases in Germany on account of the German system of holding up Americans at Bremen and Hamburg, as well as at inland frontiers, taking the goods from them and fining them heavily. This is done under the German law, demanding from 50 to 200 per cent taxes, payable to the government on all articles for export.

Throughout Germany the consular offices are piled with protests from Americans, claiming that the shopkeepers inform them it is not necessary to pay the export tax, whereupon the custom officials confiscated their opera glasses, clothes, baggage and valuables.

German-Americans, many of whom are now visiting the fatherland for the first time since before the great war, fare no better than native Americans, it is reported. They are all included under the term "Valutastrong Amerikaner" and are soaked three or four times the regular charges for hotel accommodations.

RECIPES

PRESENTED DAILY BY KATE BREW VAUGHN

LEMON RAISIN PIE (Delicious)
One and one-half cups of raisins, three eggs, one cup of sugar, one lemon, one cup of rich milk or cream. Beat the egg yolks, add the sugar, cream and grated rind of lemon. Stir well while mixing in the lemon juice to prevent curdling. Beat the whites of eggs stiff and fold into this custard mixture, add the raisins and pour into unbaked pie crust. Bake first in hot oven to cook the crust and then reduce the temperature to set the custard.

PIE CRUST
One and one-half cups of sifted flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon baking powder. Chop in as lightly as possible one-half cup of thoroughly chilled shortening. Make into a paste with as little water as possible, add in spoons full. Three tablespoons will be sufficient. Roll as lightly as possible and keep as cold as you can.

MARGARITES
Boil one cup of sugar and one-third cup water, pinch of cream of commodations and merchandise purchases.

While Germany is the worst offender in this respect, it is reported that these conditions prevail in other parts of Europe, with a result that vast numbers of Americans who would otherwise go on tours abroad, are turning their attention to the many attractions of the United States for travel and recreation. In other words, there is a decided return movement summed up in the term "See America First."

tartar until it spins a thread, drop in six marshmallows and allow to dissolve. Pour the syrup over the well-beaten whites of two eggs, beat well until cool, add two tablespoons of coconut and few drops of vanilla extract. Spread in salting crackers and place in moderately hot oven for ten minutes watching carefully that the mixture does not burn. Serve with afternoon tea, or place on top of other salting and serve as a sandwich.

FAMILY SCENE CHINA MUST PUT IN PENDROY'S CHILD PARTY

Reception To Little Ones Is Overwhelming Success

Like a fairy garden, with flowers, ferns and singing canaries, was the children's department of Pendroy's good store when it entertained Friday afternoon from 2 to 4 with its first children's party.

The affair took place on the second floor of the new Pendroy store and the spacious room set aside for the party was filled to overflowing with little tots and their mothers.

The program of the afternoon which was in charge of Mrs. Pendroy and the salesladies on the second floor, included first, a solo dance by Miss Rita Kealey; second, solo dance by Miss Alice Barton. This was followed by a dainty fashion show in which several youngsters displayed clever summer models, ranging from about four years to ten. Most of the models were of dainty organ-dies and volles, with hats or bonnets to match.

Another was of canary poplin with bloomers extending below the skirt and a black velvet sash. All were typical of summer and sports wear.

The little misses who displayed these charming dresses were Rita Kealey, Mary Alice Barton, Elizabeth Hoffman, Virginia Gary and Jane Green. Miss Dorothy Haig and Miss Harriet Cook also displayed some clever models for girls around the ages of 18 and 20.

Miss Laura Wilford Brown then entertained the kiddies with stories, the first on being "The Necktie of Frank." This was followed by "A Glimpse Into Fairyland." Both of these numbers were exceedingly interesting and the children begged for more, but Miss Brown said she would save some for next time. She has had a great deal of experience in telling stories, having taken a course in Los Angeles, and the children were greatly pleased.

At the close of this pleasant afternoon, refreshing punch was served. Miss Cook and Miss Haig assisted.

Stable Government Needed Before She Will Be Allowed to Borrow

PEKING (By mail).—China must put her house in order, establish a stable, responsible government having power over the provinces, and prove that she means to conduct herself as an orderly, business-like nation, before she can borrow money from the consortium.

This was the flat statement of Frederick W. Stevens, representative of the American group of the consortium, given to the United Press on the eve of his departure from Peking for America. Stevens will spend his vacation in America and will report to the group on the significance of the recent international war as regards finances.

The central government must have the support of the provinces as well as power over them, Stevens said, and she must disband her superfluous troops, so that the tax income will cover the expenses must be eliminated so that the government can continue in stability. Then China must go to the consortium and declare her willingness to do business on publicly expressed consortium lines. The consortium is not going to beg China to accept a loan and in any negotiations that may be undertaken the Chinese government must show that she means to be a four square.

Under present conditions the consortium is not prepared to do anything for China, but under changed conditions the banking groups of America, England, France and Japan are prepared to lend money for constructive enterprises, such as railroad building.

Possibly as a prelude to the constructive loans, the consortium will lend enough to enable China to refund some of her most pressing outstanding loans.

Finding security for new loans is not going to be an easy task, Stevens said, though he did not wish to say definitely whether or not there was sufficient security available to cover a loan ample for China's needs. The situation is not hopeless, necessarily, Stevens believes, if China is willing to cooperate in the matter of supervision when a loan is made.

China's principal sources of income have been her customs, both import and export, the railroads, telegraphs, salt monopoly and wine and tobacco taxes. In the last few years parts of these incomes have been pledged for loans. It is almost impossible for foreigners to learn the exact national debt, because there have been so many subsidies and so many ministers of finance.

However, the debt is estimated to be between $1,500,000,000 and $2,000,000,000, Chinese money. Some of the money was borrowed in pounds sterling, some in francs and some in gold dollars, while others are in yen, Chinese exchange figures so prominently that one of the early tasks will be to stabilize exchange, as was proposed by some men at the Washington conference, reduce the debt to a common denominator, and learn just where the country stands.

The consortium has been in existence about two years. It was organized after the world war and the subsequent treaty conference. Under the consortium agreement the four nations agree to make loans to China as a group, thus obviating the possibility of creating new spheres of influence.

A train in the west was held up by bandits, who ordered the passengers to give up all their money. One of the passengers was a Jew from New York, and when his turn came he reluctantly drew $300 from his pocket and, taking $6, put it in his pocket.

"What do you mean by that?" asked the bandit.

"Surely," answered the Jew, "you don't mind me taking a 2 per cent discount on a cash transaction."

These are the days of big casts—that is, big in quality—as indicated by the notable players who appear in Ethel Clayton's picture "For the Defense," adapted from Elmer Rice's play by Beulah Marie Dix, in which Vernon Steele plays the leading man's role.

The spirit that has made the west what it is today, taught and woven into a drama of superlative tenderness, and lived in the most vivid fashion upon the screen. That is "The Crimson Challenge," a Paramount picture starring Dorothy Dalton, at the T. D. & L. Sunday.

ARTHUR LINDLEY TO OPEN OFFICE IN GLENDALE

Architectural Engineer of Note, Plans Branch Office in City

Arthur G. Lindley, an architectural engineer of note, who maintains an office at 901 Wright and Callender building in Los Angeles, is anticipating the opening of a branch office in Glendale. Mr. Lindley resides at 123 South Belmont street, this city, and believes Glendale is one of the liveliest cities in this section of the country. Mr. Lindley stated this morning that his local branch office will be opened just as soon as a suitable location can be secured.

Mr. Lindley now has associated with him, Charles R. Selkirk of Washington, D. C., who is one of the foremost designers in this country. Mr. Selkirk recently won the beautiful cup for the best design for the four million dollar concrete Masonic temple at Washington, competing against the leading architects of the country. He is an expert engineer as well as a designer, and was one of the engineers selected to investigate the cause of the collapse of the Knickerbocker theatre in Washington, some time ago.

"There is an erroneous impression breathing in some sections," said Mr. Lindley this morning, "that I do church designing only. The fact of the matter is that since locating in California I have done a great deal of designing of hotels, apartments, bungalows, and, in fact, along every other line. In the future I will continue this general designing work, although I will also furnish designs for church edifices of all kinds, a special department for which I maintain."

Mr. Lindley has been in California for the past ten years, eight years of which time he has been a resident of Glendale. He is a member of the Glendale chamber of commerce and the Masonic lodge.

Among the recent buildings designed by Mr. Lindley are the classical First Methodist church of Pasadena, the First Methodist church of Burbank, which is now being finished, and the Methodist church of San Pedro, which will cost about $100,000. He has also recently drawn plans for a mammoth store and office building in Culver City, a large school building at Garden Grove, and a $50,000 church building in the same city. In addition to these there are many smaller pieces of designing work.

OPPOSED KAISER'S WAR PROGRAM

NEW YORK, June 24.—"The war was caused by cowardice," declared Dr. Walter Rathenau in June of last year, an interview with W. W. Hawkins, president of the United Press in the office of the then minister of reconstruction in Wilhelmstrasse in Berlin. Dr. Rathenau talked freely but insisted that his words should not be quoted during his life time. Notes of the interview were made at the time and may now be released.

"The Kaiser rattled his sword until he frightened himself and all of his ministers out of their normal judgment," declared Rathenau when asked his opinion as to the real cause of the war. He pointed across the Wilhelmstrasse and said:

"Von Bethman Hollweg and his ministers sat up all night in their offices over there, in fear and trembling, hoping and praying that the war would not come, and that in terms of the ultimatum, and that they would escape the disaster in which their cowardice had led them."

"The policy of frightfulness was the policy of cowardice. It was the policy of a man afraid, who makes a great noise in an effort to frighten his enemy in hope that he may avoid fighting."

"All Germany knows this and there is no danger of the Kaiser ever coming back to Berlin. The German people are cured forever of royalty, but of course, there are a certain number of royalists in Germany, who will remain royalists as long as they live. Nothing can change them and they will make a noise as long as breath remains in their bodies, but they are an entirely inconsequential minority. The greatest proof of this was in the Kapp coup when his royalist rule in Berlin was utterly destroyed by the silent protest of the people through the only effective general strike ever known in history. The people of Berlin simply stopped dead in their tracks and Kapp found himself the ruler of a dead city without food, water, light or any of the necessities of life. So far history has failed to appreciate the tremendous significance of this great event, which I am sure worked the final end of organized royalist activity in Germany."

"The truth about the war was that it was a war brought on by the cowards, who were afraid to face the economic facts and the social conditions which surrounded them. Before they realized what they had done, they had gone so far that they could not draw back from the inevitable results which they themselves feared more than anyone else."

"The world should know this and the world should know that the last thing possible in Germany is the return of the Kaiser. I wish I could make this statement public at this time, but there are obvious reasons why it would be unwise."

The statements made by Dr. Rathenau in this interview reveal his true attitude toward the situation in Germany and make perfectly clear the hatred held for him by the royalist party.

The would-be sportsman was arrayed in the very latest thing in shooting suits and had all the necessary appointments connected with the sport, with the exception of the ability to hit anything. The small boy who accompanied him was mirthful at first, but at last his mirth turned to disgust as time went on and the sportsman had not been able to bag anything. Suddenly a rabbit darted from behind a log, looked around, and then dropped as if shot. The sportsman picked it up.

"There isn't a mark on it!" he exclaimed in astonishment.

"No," answered the boy. "I think it must have laughed itself to death."

An old dorky called Uncle Ed made his living by doing odd jobs. He could neither read nor write and had the reputation of being extremely cautious in all his business dealings. One day he was employed by Mr. C. to do some work about his place, and when the work was finished Mr. C. handed him his money. As Uncle Ed took the money he said: "Mr. C., would you mind givin' me a receipt for dis money?"

Mr. C. indulgently wrote: "I have this day paid Uncle Ed $2," dated and signed it.

The old dorky watched him carefully, and as he took the receipt, said: "Mr. C., is y^e sure dis am yo' own handwritin'?"

Bobby wanted a donkey—and he had seen the donkey in a nearby field.

"What would happen if I stole that donkey?" he asked his father. "You would get six months in prison," replied his father.

Bobby thought a while, and then said: "You wouldn't forget to feed it while I way away, would you, father?"

DOING WITHOUT IS WAY TO FIND OUT CAR NEED

Leaving Car In Garage Is Good Way of Seeing
Its Necessity

The best way for a motorist to find out how much his car is really worth to him is to try doing without it for a week, is the opinion of J. C. Pollock, 208 West Broadway, local agent for the Oldsmobile automobile.

"A friend of mine," he says, "had an experience not long ago that illustrates the discomfort of turning pedestrian again after having been a motorist for many years. His wife's relatives came from the east for a visit and nothing would do but they must look up some mutual friends in the northern part of the state. So, the wife took the car for a week and left friend husband to hoof it.

"Well, he thought it would be great sport doing without the car for a time. Besides it would give him a chance to rest up from the strenuousness of driving through traffic. But one day cured him of that point of view. He was late to three different business engagements, missed two altogether, and lost out completely on a good contract because his competitor beat him to it. The rest of the week was almost as bad. He even had to forego two important social events because he couldn't make connections by street railway service and wouldn't consent to sponge a ride off a friend.

"Imagine how he felt when his wife finally returned with the car. He says he wouldn't be without one for a week again for anything in the world. And be sure it won't happen any more. He is going to get his wife an automobile of her own. I've just found out, by the way, that's what she wanted him to do a long time ago."

GAP IN VALLEY LATERAL CLOSED

Contract for last gap of the San Bernardino-imperial valley lateral, bridging the desert portion between Banning and the edge of the irrigation section near Westmoreland, namely, 12 1/2 miles from Banning to Whitewater, has been awarded by the California highway commission to the Lee Moor Contracting company of El Paso, Tex., on a basis of reinforced concrete, for $177,880, this sum plus state furnished material making a total cost for the section of $274,584.

An Automobile is no better than its battery

When your battery is down and out, your car might as well be, and it is not only economy but common sense to get the best battery obtainable right off the bat, so to speak. Many automobile owners make the mistake of trying to save on their batteries, but in doing so generally save trouble for themselves and pocketbooks, and in the end the cheap battery becomes an expensive proposition. In the knowledge that our reputation as competent auto electricians is at stake, and that offering a poor battery at a low price would mean that a customer would call but once, we have taken particular pains to handle none but the best and at a price that is not excessive. We recommend the

He Who Puts Off Repairs
Is Going To Be Sorry,
Says J. & K. Garage

"The motorist who habitually puts off needed repairs until just before he is ready to start the first trip in the spring, had better watch his step this year," says Mr. Jellison, of the J. and K. garage, South Brand.

"Statistics show so many more cars in use that if they all follow the usual custom of jamming the repair shops with rush work, it will probably take three weeks to get a spark plug cleaned.

"Repair it now," is the slogan that repairmen and accessory dealers are impressing on motorists all over the country. "Repair it now" is a mighty wise thing to do, for now you can get through prompt service. Rush work is seldom satisfactory and cautious motorists aren't taking any chances on delays or poor workmanship.

SAVAGE LITTLE HEAP TO VISIT GLENDALE

Sturdy Little Indian Featuring Savage Tire to Come Here

Little Heap will again be much in the public eye this year. He is going to do some traveling and during the summer will visit many interesting places throughout the west. The public will see him in certain well-known scenic spots and points of interest.

As almost everyone knows, Little Heap is the trade character of the Speckles "Savage" Tire company of San Diego, Calif., the pioneer tire builders of the west. He is the sturdy little Indian boy that is so familiar to motorists through his affiliation with Savage tire advertising.

They have seen him countless times on bulletin boards and posters in daily newspapers and magazine advertisements. Now he is going to take a trip on Savage cords throughout the big territory in which his company operates.

YOSEMITE ROAD IN GOOD SHAPE

Reports of road conditions from Fresno into Camp Curry, Yosemite, are to the effect that all important roads are in excellent shape throughout the entire distance. The Coarse Gold road out of Fresno is in good shape although a trifle rough; that by way of Madera and Grub gulch is perhaps the best route for motorists to take, although via Merced and either Miami lodge or over the Chowchilla mountain is in fine shape and takes the motorist through very interesting country.

Additional accommodations provided at Camp Curry have assured visitors greater comfort than in any previous year and there is no chance of such crowded conditions as prevailed for a brief period around July 4 of last year. Assistant Manager "Bob" Williams writes from the valley that the scenery is exceptional this season and that the oldest settler declares he has never seen so much water in the various falls as this spring.

BOULEVARDS ARE DANGEROUS IF WET

Maryland Garage Warns of Slippery Condition
Where Road Is Oiled

"It is true that in Southern California there is very little snow, ice and mud," says the proprietor of the Maryland garage, located on Maryland, between Broadway and Wilson, "because this part of the country is a veritable network of fine boulevards. Nevertheless, travel on some of the fine boulevards becomes dangerous when they are wet with fog or rains. Particularly is this true after a dry spell. For the pavements are coated with a layer of oil, which when wet with fog or rain, presents the slipperiest surface that is to be found. This oil, from the multitude of machines, has seeped into the asphalt and cannot be washed off except by a very heavy rain."

CHILD CASUALTY LIST DECREASES

Kiddies Becoming More
Watchful of Crossings
Than Formerly

Casualties among children because of traffic accidents have declined in spite of the fact that there are now 229,869 motor vehicles in Los Angeles county, and more being registered every day, the manager of the local branch of the Western Auto Supply Co., on South Brand, said this morning. "The extent of reduction in accidents to children," he said, "is easily appreciated by following the statistics on the subject in the daily newspapers. One seldom reads of children being seriously hurt or killed by cars and trucks. And I attribute this vast improvement largely to the effect of the safety-first education instigated at the direction of the national highway and highway transport committee.

"Kiddies are becoming more watchful at street crossings. They take fewer risks in their play. They've learned to stay on the sidewalk and in the yards. And if a campaign of education can work such an improvement in the carefulness of the youngsters why is it that the parents don't absorb some of the principles in the same instruction?"

FOLLOW THESE SAFETY RULES

Put on skid chains at the first sign of wet weather.

Approach all crossings cautiously. The worst accidents occur at these points.

In wet weather apply the brake with the clutch still engaged when starting to stop.

When negotiating a grade or curve do not jam the throttle too soon. Bad skids occur this way.

When overtaking and passing a car do not cut in again until about 50 feet ahead of the car just passed.

On approaching a grade crossing shift into second gear. This will eliminate stalling the car on the crossing.

KEROSENE PLUS BRUSH TO CLEAN

In cleaning small parts of chassis, such as the oil holes on brake, cross shafts, brake connections, spark and throttle connections, etc., use an oilcan filled with kerosene and a stiff brush. In this way the kerosene in just the proper amount can be directed just where it is needed. This method is particularly useful in cleaning out oil holes which have become partly filled with dirt.

SEE THAT RIVETS ARE IN PLACE

Few owners examine the frame for loose rivets, yet these often shake loose and fall out. A car owner recently found that two rivets which held a cross member of the frame in place had slipped out and the siderail had cracked a little as a result.

OIL HER UP FOR A TRIP COMBINING BOTH SEA AND THE MOUNTAINS OUT TOPANGO WAY

Through the Lower End of San Fernando Valley
South Through the Canyon, To the Shore and Back via the Beach and Hollywood

It's been hot this week—just that kind of weather that makes a fellow naturally roll up his sleeves and look way out over the landscape to the north or east or south and wonder just how far it is to the nearest trout stream or the closest swimming hole. When the old sun shines as it shone this week, sending its heat rays down on this old earth in a never-ending stream, these literally take the life rays out of one, and compel the folks hereabout to go scampering to some little secluded nook in the mountains or at the seashore.

There is something wonderful to the feeling that you are off for two weeks or a month, away from work and worry, and are going to make every minute of the time pay in rest and pleasure. It is equally as great, while you are away, to feel yourself in the act of coming back—gaining strength for the work of the coming year which with all its trials and disappointments, is sure to face you. As you play you feel the strength returning and slowly the old spring returns to the footstep and the sparkle comes back to the eye.

It matters not which direction you go or whether you go to the seashore or the mountains you are bound to do the "come back" stunt. Last week the trip suggestion of the Glendale Daily Press was to the mountains—San Dimas canyon—out where the little streamlet sings its wonderful tune day in and day out—a tune which a fellow simply cannot help learning to love.

The trip suggestion this week is going to be a combination of the seashore and the mountains, at the same time giving the motorist a glimpse of the wonderful San Fernando valley. It will be out through the lower end of the San Fernando valley, south through the Topanga canyon to the seashore and back via the beach and Hollywood roads. It is a beautiful trip and one that can easily be made in a day with all kinds of time for stops for lunch and to see the beautiful views along the way.

From Broadway and Brand start out West Broadway and continue to the San Fernando boulevard, where turn right (north) and continue through the rapidly growing subdivisions and on to Burbank. At Burbank turn left (west) at the bank building and continue over the railroad tracks and out over the cultivated fields and up the beautiful Dark Canyon hills and over into Cahuenga pass.

Turn right (north) at Cahuenga pass and run out past Universal City, continuing out along the unsurpassed hills that constitute the southern boundary of the wonderful San Fernando valley. There are quite a number of points of unusual interest along this highway, which is the Los Angeles-Ventura state road, and one of the finest boulevards in the state. Emerging from the curved section of highway that winds in and out among the hills and past the entrance of Laurel canyon, the beautiful Hollywood Golf club grounds are passed, this being located on the slopes of the hills to the south of the highway. This golf club has been in existence only a year or so, and already it has been converted into a sea of green with the gorgeous clubhouse nestling cozily in the hills to the south of the course.

Continuing out over this highway, every foot of which is as smooth as a table, the motorist will pass the far-famed Tu-toc-na-hua hog ranch, which raises more blue-ribbon hogs than any ranch in the state. Continuing westward the tourist will pass hundreds of acres of highly cultivated fields. There are walnut groves, apricot orchards—the most beautiful eye has ever seen—mammoth patches of corn, beets, etc., beautiful little farm houses surrounded by their family gardens and groves of various types of trees, and everything that goes to make the ideal farm—the country home of heart's desire.

Enclino acres, which is known throughout the whole of California, is passed a short distance beyond. There are hundreds of acres of exceedingly productive land in this tract, many of which already have been set out to oranges, lemons, and delicious fruits. A little farther on the Ad-hor dairy, which is noted for its wonderful product, is passed, lying on the south side of the road. A short distance beyond this ranch Chalk hills are covered and the motorist will continue along the highway, past the road leading up to Owensmouth and on to the entrance to Topanga canyon, which is marked by signs of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

For a short distance, after turning from the highway, the motorist will cover a good graded and oiled road running through practically level country, after which the road will begin the rise. The old motorist will show the effects of this increase in grade and will call for a little more gas. From the point the motorist enters the Topanga hills until he emerges at the southern end of the canyon, every foot of the road brings to the motorist a new and even more beautiful scene. The roadway winds round and round, skirting a nose in a hill here and circling an abrupt turn a little farther on. The trip through this canyon is one grand series of surprises, and it more than repays the motorist for his effort in making the jaunt.

SEVENTY BILLS FOR MOTOR REGULATION

Over seventy bills designed to regulate or tax motor cars or their owners have been introduced into the legislature at Albany, N. Y., this winter.

Those suggested by the state tax commission include the following:

A tax of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline.

License fees to be based on weight of car, with a minimum fee of $8.

The fee for trucks to be increased one-third.

Operators' licenses to be revoked upon conviction for serious offenses.

More specific and accurate specifications for headlight lenses.

That a bill of sale must be registered on transfer of a car, and owner must carry and exhibit such certificate of registration.

A bond of $500 for all taxicabs operating in cities.

Bills covering some of these recommendations have already been introduced, but just what the legislature will do is hard to tell, except that it is more than likely to adopt all the measures increasing the tax burden, and forget the few things that will give car owners protection from theft.

RIGHT OILING IS NECESSARY TO AVOID OVERHAUL

Reliable Garage Explains
Way To Reduce
Your Costs

"If an automobile is properly lubricated and minor adjustments made, when the need demands them," said the proprietor of the Reliable garage, 310 East Colorado boulevard, this morning, "it will be unnecessary to arrange for complete overhauling of the car, such as the taking apart, cleaning, adjusting and replacing worn parts of every mechanical unit. Rattles or knocks develop, but will be discovered immediately as they occur if a weekly inspection is given by the owner, and should be attended to and remedied at once. When the car is very old and has reached its limit of service, general overhauling may be necessary, although even then there may be parts in fair condition."

SEE THAT TIRE HAS GOOD TUBE

A defective tube will ruin the best tire. Just as it's the heart that keeps a body going, so it's the tube that keeps the casing up. A man would certainly not select a weak heart because it was cheap, but would want the best. So the motorist should purchase the tube that will best prolong the life of the casing. The better the tube one buys, the greater assurance he has of full and satisfactory service from his casing. A good casing is terribly handicapped with a defective or worn-out tube.

Gas ordinance is No. 1897. That was year before Spanish war. Pre-war gasoline was high standard. Present-day gasoline is high priced.

TREAT TIRES WELL AND RIDE CAR LONG

Local Manager of Auto
Tire Company Claims
It Helps Engine

The whole car will last longer if you only treat your tires as they should be treated, is the latest maxim called to the attention of motorists.

"Quite a number of car owners," the local manager of the Automobile Tire Co., 211 South Brand boulevard, "classify as hard drivers solely on the grounds of the abuse—often unwitting abuse—given their tire equipment. And the same men frequently fail to realize the effect of such practice on the cars themselves.

"Skidding around corners, for instance, not only wears out tires, but it strains the wheels and racks the frame. Cutting into the curb, besides scraping the side wall of the casing, may produce a distinct disalignment of the wheels. Driving recklessly on headlessly over rough roads off strewn with obstacles, will many miles out of the life of the car as well as shorten the mileage of the tire equipment.

"Underinflation, the monotonously lamented form of tire abuse, also has its bad effects on the car. Not only that, but underinflated tire equipment also causes unnecessary inroads on the tire supply in the well-known tank.

"In addition to all this, it is dead certain that the man who gets the habit of driving carefully in order to increase tire mileage service in his tire equipment, will quite naturally get the habit of being watchfully careful of the whole car's welfare. In other words, he who treats his tires right may be counted on to treat his automobile right."

RECEIVING APPARATUS AND CIRCUITS

Comparison of Transmitting Apparatus and Receiving Circuits

It will be apparent that, to receive the electromagnetic waves radiated from the sending station, it is necessary to have a circuit which is a counter part of the sending station. In the transmitting circuit itself there is practically a sending and a receiving circuit, the sending being the closed oscillation circuit and the receiving the open, or the radiating circuit. When the product of the capacity and the inductance in each is the same, the circuits are in resonance and of the energy released by the closed circuit, the maximum amount is induced in the open circuit through the cutting of the coil in this circuit by the lines of electrostatic and electromagnetic force.

Process of Receiving Radiations
Essentially the same thing occurs when the radiated waves are intercepted by the receiving aerial, the only difference between sending and receiving aerial in this connection, and the closed and open circuits of the sending station, being that of distance. The oncoming wave of the sending station, or group of electrostatic lines of force in a vertical plane and similar train of electromagnetic lines of force in a horizontal plane, so that the wires of an inverted L type aerial, part of which are vertical and part horizontal, are cut by these lines of force. Hence, alternating currents of the same frequency are induced in these wires, and, in the capacity and the inductance of the aerial circuit are of such values that it is in resonant relation with the sending aerial, the induced potential and current will be the maximum receivable at the distance in question.

the current. The secondary of the oscillation transformer responds to a high-power wave emitted from a primary in the most efficient inductive relation with it, whereas, if the sending aerial be considered as the primary of a long-distance transformer and the receiving aerial as the secondary, it will be apparent that the secondary must respond to very feeble waves, since the strength of the radiated current is said to decrease approximately as the square of the distance. A current of ten amperes radiated from the sending station will, accordingly, have decreased to a value of a few milliamperes when the electromagnetic waves reach the receiving station several hundred miles away. Thus, while the receiving circuit must be a counterpart of the sending circuit, there is necessary, in addition, delicate instruments to detect the passage of the waves and still others to convert the currents induced in the receiving circuit into audible signals. These instruments are the detector and the head phones.

PRESS-NEWTON RADIO STATION

Reports have been pouring in from all angles and distances, from the test which was run from 9 to 9:03 o'clock Friday evening on radio KFAC, Glendale's only broadcasting station, many expressing regrets that the program did not continue longer. All reports were to the effect that the modulation and the quality of signals were perfect, and the audibility also. Radio KFAC will be on the air next week with a program not to be rivaled, and we sincerely hope that the favorable reports that have been pouring in will so continue. We thank you all very kindly for calling, and especially the people out of town who went to the expense of phoning over long-distance phone.

MRS. HARRIMAN, CAMP FIRE GIRLS CHIEF, BROADCASTING MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT

As president of the Camp Fire Girls, Mrs. Oliver Harriman sent a message by radio to mothers and fathers, telling why girls would be benefited by going to Camp Fire Girls' camps. She also read a message from President and Mrs. Harding.

that the whole question was being referred to the imperial communications committee, so that the views of the departments concerned might be obtained as early as possible. He added that he was himself entirely sympathetic with the idea.

GERMANY'S R. R. RADIO
Wireless telephone instruments will be installed on a number of important German express trains, and receiving instruments will be placed in hotels and embassies, according to an announcement made recently.

Experiments have shown the practicability of it. Men engaged in the testing of the instruments were able to hold conversations with friends in Berlin from moving trains. The tests were made under the observation of engineers, military attaches and the diplomatic representatives of the United States and Sweden.

It is planned for travelers on express trains to reserve hotel accommodations by radio.

ONE RADIO LANGUAGE
Considerable comment has been heard recently about the advisability, or rather, the necessity of formulating a world-wide radio language, as intelligible to the Japs and Germans as to the English and French.

The world is rapidly being linked together by radio and space no longer is a factor in the speed with which messages flash from one people to another. Those in Alaska can converse via the wireless telegraph to the White House in Washington. Washington can get Nau- en, Germany, on the air quite as easily as it can get Chicago.

Trained minds in European cities are considering the question of developing a universal language that will adapt itself to code work. Diplomats feel certain, according to reports, that such an undertaking, successfully accomplished, will do much to pacify the many different kinds of peoples on the continent, in Asia, and in the Far East.

ROOM AND BATH WITH RADIO NOW

As soon as the radio wave of popularity spread the first ones to recognize its commercial value as a medium of getting publicity were the hotels and cafes. Many New York cafes, prominent ones, too, have installed radiophones in their dining rooms, besides the regular orchestra, and when no music is coming over the ether, the orchestra plays. Dances are held in such places by radio music, and, as the country editor would say, a good time is had by all.

Several of the big hotels have been approached by dealers in radio equipment with a proposition to equip the hostelry rooms with radio receiving sets. The hotel men are hesitating. They want to—but it would require more help, more watching of the rooms to see that the equipment is not purloined and they question whether the value of the radiophone in the room would more than offset the difficulties which would naturally arise. They haven't said no, and so, maybe our hotel room of the future will have not only a bureau, bed and bath, but a radiophone as well. Oh, for the life of a traveling salesman!

"HELLO, PA, I'M HALFWAY TO EUROPE"

The shore-to-ship tests recently carried on between the America, bound for Europe, and a station on the Jersey coast, have proven so successful that it is probable many ships will carry on radio- phone communications as a feature of their service.

Soon after its departure from New York, the America exchanged conversations with the Jersey station. This was continued several times a day during the long voyage. An operator especially assigned to the America noted the degree of clearness with which the messages were received during the trip, and reported that news digests, music, and other messages, were received with fine distinctness.

A ship recently arriving from a South American port, while off Cuba, picked up New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago broadcast. Transatlantic passengers may soon be able to exchange greetings with relatives on shore two or three days prior to their landing.

The valet of a certain sporting nobleman in England who has secured leave to attend a race informed his wife that his lordship had predicted that a horse named Most Beautiful would be sure to win the race.

He rose upon the morning of the race to find that the name had escaped his memory, but his more retentive wife posed before him her most alluring manner, and asked: "Don't I remind you, James, dear?"

Casting a hasty glance in the direction, he exclaimed excitedly: "I've got it—Ugly Duckling!"

Say "Good Mornin'" and just say it in such a friendly way! Say it like a feller should. Kind o' emphasize the "good." Say it as a feller ort. Never say it crisp and short. But just kind o' make it sweet. Gentle, friendly and complete.

Have a twinkle in your eye. And don't never pass me by Without emphasizing "good." As a friendly greetin' should. Neverbe too rushed to say it in such a meanin' way. Have a soul in you to bless Me with cheer and friendliness.

Busy fellers, gruff and short. They don't say it as they ort. Too much on their minds, I guess. Ain't got time for friendliness. Glad I aint so rushed about I can't let my feelin's out. I can say it as I should. Kind o' emphasize the "good."

Try it sometime, when you see Someone needin' cheer like me. Don't hold nothin' back, but say Your "Good Mornin'" in a way That'll warm somebody through. With the friendliness of you. Say it as a feller should. Kind o' emphasize the "good."

"TOO MUCH WIFE" AT THE GLENDALE

Wanda Hawley and T. Roy Barnes as a young married couple offer a treat at the Glendale theatre tonight in "Too Much Wife," a Realart comedy-drama and one of the best things of its kind ever seen on the screen.

It's a long story when you try to write it, but it reels along at the limit of speed, with a laugh to mark off every couple of revolutions. Miss Hawley, as a fond little bride, eager to insure the marital happiness of herself and her bridegroom, takes advice from her "masterful" mother, but also, privately, from her henpecked father. Her effort to reconcile and act on both conflicting counsels makes the story—one you'll like.

DR. AND MRS. HOGUE WILL GO TO CAMP

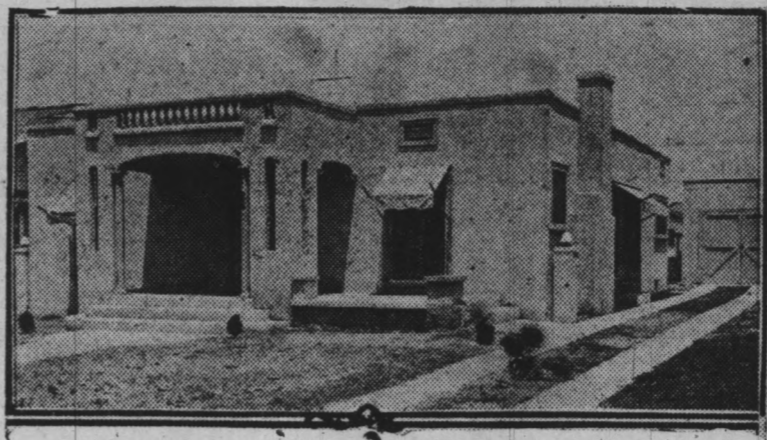

Dr. and Mrs. R. V. Hogue are leaving in about a week for their mountain camp, "Hoguedale," on Big Bear lake, near Fawnskin. The doctor will return after a brief stay, but Mrs. Hogue and Benly will spend the summer there, the doctor going up as often as possible.

MRS. PENDROY TO LEAVE ON TOUR TO BUY GOODS

Response of Glendale Has Exceeded Expectation of Management

Mrs. Pendroy is leaving for New York about July 4 to make purchases for the Pendroy store. In deciding to locate in Glendale the Pendroys say the figured it would be a year before they could reasonably expect to have an established business. Glendale is not far from Los Angeles, where the people had been in the habit of trading to a considerable extent, and they argued to themselves it would take some time to convince the public it would be to its interest to buy more largely at home. For that reason they made a conservative start, not wanting to make a leap in the dark or to spend the capital they expect to invest until they had opportunity to study the taste of the people. But they have received an agreeable surprise which has had its embarrassing side in the big response which Glendale has made, a response which has placed the store on a footing they did not expect to reach for a year.

Mrs. Pendroy is therefore going to New York to make purchases and see what the market affords for "middle of the road" people. "That natural zone is where you will find the customer that merchants most desire to reach," she says, "the conservative customer who wants to be abreast of the times, but who has the good taste to avoid the bizarre in dress and behavior."

The good-looking young woman on the railway train permitted a genial fellow traveler to talk to her. The man became quite friendly and desired to know where she lived and who she was.
"Oh!" replied the girl, "I'm only a very ordinary woman, but my friends persist in trying to make me somebody."
"Ah!" was the gallant answer, "I am sure they act quite wisely and with good taste."
"You flatter me, sir, and yet I have no doubt a band will meet at the station when I arrive at Windsor."
"Indeed? May I ask what band it is that is so honored?"
"Oh, yes, certainly! It is a husband."
The man moved to another car.

"MARRY GOLD" Longwed—"Do you believe in such sentiment as saying it with flowers?"
Neverwed—"No. A man can't be too careful. When old Mrs. Bullion was ill I sent her a bunch of marigolds, and she took it for a proposal."

A MOST INTERESTING TIME Hubby—"Well, did you enjoy the concert?"
Wife—"Yes, it was lovely. I was lucky to sit next to Mrs. Joyce. I haven't seen her for several months and we had so much to talk about."
